Hepzibah House Updates

April, 2013

Thank you so much for your interest in Hepzibah House
and your concern for modern day slavery!

Our 3rd Annual Hepzibah House BBQ
& Barn Dance
was a stunning success!!

Katrina,

a trafficking overcomer, did an amazing job of telling her story. There were quite a few guests fighting back tears as they heard of her experiences along with an unmistakable thread of God's faithfulness, as He preserved her life over and again.

Becky followed up with
Ten Ways
You Can Make a Difference

in both fighting and raising awareness of human trafficking. These quick points are

Ten Ways

You

Can Make

A Difference

1. Pray!!
2. Educate yourself
3. Learn the red flags that may listed to the right in the side bar.

The remainder of the evening was filled with good, old fashioned square dancing!!

Check out the photos on our Hepzibah House FaceBook page!! Our very own "Trixie the Tractor" played a key supporting role as our photo-op back drop!

If you attended the dance more photos are available by contacting us.

(There were a number of images of young children, but in deference to caution, these were not posted on FB.)

Becky & Hepzibah House!

Katrina & Becky

Paired up again to speak at Palm Beach Atlantic University Chapel, for International Justice Week, March 27th.

There is something very compelling in hearing a survivor's story. Facts, that seem distant and hard to believe become powerful and real when shared in the context of personal experience.

Katrina does an excellent job of sharing in an impacting and powerful way. More of her story is

Other speaking opportunities are opening up...

The Avenue Church is hosting a City Forum for Human Trafficking Awareness

May 10, 2013 at the Delray Beach Community Center, 6:30pm-8:30pm.

Becky will be one of the guest speakers addressing the mental health issues associated with a human trafficking experience and the vulnerabilities that compromise individuals, making them more susceptible to exploitation.
